Background

Within Alliance Manchester Business School (AMBS), the Division of Accounting and Finance is one of the leading, and also one of the largest, accounting and finance units in Europe and the world, with an outstanding track record of excellence in research and teaching.

In terms of research, the Accounting group has considerable strengths in the areas of auditing and accountability, financial accounting and reporting, and management accounting, with faculty members publishing in top tier journals such as Accounting, Organization and Society, Administrative Science Quarterly, Contemporary Accounting Research, Journal of Accounting Research, Organization Studies, Review of Accounting Studies, Strategic Management Journal, and The Accounting Review.. Our faculty members also hold editorial positions or board memberships in various academic journals on the Financial Times Top 50 or Chartered Association of Business School (ABS) lists as well as those affiliated to the American Accounting Association (AAA), British Accounting and Finance Association (BAFA), European Accounting

Association (EAA), and the European Group of Organization Studies (EGOS). For qualitative and interdisciplinary research, we have extensive work in areas such as auditing, corporate social responsibility, governance, human rights, management accounting, organization studies, public sector, and research methods. Regarding quantitative and archival data based research, our work encompasses areas such as analyst forecasts, capital markets research in accounting, corporate governance, debt contracting, disclosure regulation, and taxation.

With respect to teaching, at the postgraduate level, the Division offers a wide ranging set of specialist MSc degree programmes in both accounting and finance, as well as contributing to MBA and executive education programmes. At the undergraduate level, the Division makes significant contributions to AMBS' undergraduate programmes in management and in accounting and finance together with the School of Social Sciences. Furthermore, it runs a single honours BSc degree in Accounting, which is one of a very select number of degree programmes in the UK supported and endorsed by the Institute of Chartered Accountants in England and Wales (ICAEW), and has recently launched a BSc degree in Business Accounting in partnership with PwC, which includes placements and offers a fast track to ICAEW qualification.

More information about the Division can be found at: <https://www.mbs.ac.uk/research/accounting-and-finance/>

About Manchester

With a rich Victorian heritage, borne from the Industrial Revolution, the city of Manchester has always been future-facing, and never more so than today. Since 2018, The Economist's 'Global Liveability Index' has consistently named Manchester as the best UK city to live in. The city and surrounding areas offer a vibrant, multi-cultural, and thriving environment to both live and work.

Key Responsibilities, Accountabilities or Duties:

The posts require the successful candidate to:

- Pursue an active programme of high-quality academic research leading to publications in top journals in the field of accounting and related areas. We welcome applications from candidates undertaking research in any area of accounting and using any theoretical and methodological approaches.
- Contribute to, develop and deliver excellent teaching in and across the general area of accounting.
- Engage actively in the Division by attending seminars and other divisional activities regularly, as well as meeting with seminar speakers and research visitors to the Division.
- Undertake other academic and administrative duties as required by the Head of Division.
- Supervise graduate students.
- At AMBS, the workload allocated to teaching/administration work during the first years in position is generally low and very competitive compared to other European schools.

Person Specification for Lecturer positions:

A degree (or equivalent).

A completed (or to be completed prior to commencing employment) PhD in Accounting or a related area, prior to commencing employment.

Evidence of the ability to publish in world-leading journals appropriate to the candidate's field of research.

Experience of teaching at university level and/or evidence of high-quality presentational skills, demonstrating the candidate's ability to offer high quality and varied teaching in accounting as taught in the School's courses.

Person Specification for Senior Lecturer positions:

In addition to the above essential requirements for a lecturer, candidates must have:

- A demonstrated record of research excellence in accounting as evidenced by, for example, publications in world-leading journals.
- A proven ability to offer high quality and varied teaching within the fields of accounting, including at the postgraduate level.
- Evidence of ability to successfully supervise graduate students.
- The ability to provide academic leadership to junior staff and graduate students, and the ability to collaborate with other colleagues within the Division and the School.
- The ability and willingness to contribute to the administration within the Division and the School.
