Overall Purpose of the Job:

The School of Arts, Languages and Cultures (SALC) contains one of the UK's largest concentrations of high-quality research and teaching in languages and linguistics. SALC is seeking to recruit a full-time lecturer/senior lecturer to contribute to the teaching and research activities of Spanish, Portuguese and Latin American Studies which is housed within the Division of Language-Based Area Studies. We are looking for an enthusiastic colleague to deliver courses on Spanish cultural studies. We welcome applications from candidates with a PhD and research expertise in any aspect of the culture of Spain; the position, however, is not open to those working in the field of Hispanic linguistics. This permanent appointment will make a major contribution to Spanish Studies at undergraduate level. The person appointed will also assist with the delivery of some language courses (including translation) and general introductory courses on Hispanic cultures. Applicants must therefore be fully fluent in English and Spanish. Preference may be given to candidates who work on Spanish visual culture, or who have experience teaching Golden Age literature. Only applicants with high quality publications will be considered. Evidence of grant capture, of successful PhD supervision, of assessing translation at undergraduate level, and experience developing online teaching materials would all be highly desirable. The post is tenable from 1 September 2019.

The School is strongly committed to the enhancement of excellence, in step with the University's ambitious plans as set out in the document Building on Manchester 2015 – Towards Manchester 2020, which is designed to cement the University's place within the world's top 25 universities. In

REF 2014, Modern Languages at Manchester achieved an excellent result, being ranked third in the UK on research power. Teaching is a key element of the School's activity and students at all levels benefit from the breadth of the School in that they can combine languages and also pursue interests from a cross-cultural and cross-linguistic perspective

Key Responsibilities, Accountabilities or Duties:

You will be required to:

- Conduct high quality research in any area of Spanish cultural studies for submission in the forthcoming and future REF exercises (or equivalent). Your research should contribute to improving the visibility of Spanish Studies at the University of Manchester, in the UK and internationally.
- Liaise with the Head of Language-Based Area Studies and the Undergraduate Programme Director with regard to teaching activities.
- Convene and deliver teaching for undergraduate courses on Spanish cultural studies.
- Teach on other related course units as required.
- Contribute to Spanish language teaching (e.g. translation seminars); this will be non-negotiable.
- Provide formative and summative assessment, including appropriate feedback; working with course convenors to set and mark examinations and coursework according to University criteria.
- Be available for consultation with students during a minimum of two designated office hours per week.
- Undertake other duties, administrative or otherwise, as may reasonably be required.

PERSON SPECIFICATION

Essential Knowledge, Skills and Experience:

- Experience submitting grant applications.
- Expertise in using IT resources, including virtual learning environments, for teaching purposes, and experience developing online teaching materials.

The candidate chosen will be the one who matches most closely the overall requirements of the post, so candidates should address the above criteria in their applications.

Short-listed candidates will be asked to provide two examples of their own written work (submitted to peer-reviewed journals or equivalent), and will be asked to make two 15 minute presentations: (1) on their research agenda; (2) on teaching – the idea here would be to offer a 15 minute section of an actual class as opposed to an entire class condensed into 15 minutes.
